

For Immediate Release

Michael Henry Hayden, "Slip," 2010

Anthony Lepore, "Stray," 2010

Exhibition: "My House is Your House", curated by Whitney Carter and Molly Larkey, April 29 - May 29, 2011
Opening reception: Friday, April 29, 7-10 pm

Artists: Sara Clendening & Eric Wesley, Samantha Fields & Andre Yi, Samara Golden & John Seal, Kate Harding & Steven Bankhead, Michael Henry Hayden & Anthony Lepore, Daniel Ingroff & Paul Pescador & David Gilbert, Kristi Lippire & Matt Wardell, Yunhee Min & Patrick Meagher, Tracy Nakayama & Jeremy Yoder, Amy Sarkisian & Tyler Vlahovich

Statler Waldorf Gallery is pleased to present "My House is Your House." The exhibition examines couples who work together, either in a direct capacity, or by sharing an intimate space outside of their respective studio practice(s). A partner's role as confidant and critic is essential, as they are often privy to the most intimate evolutions that each other's work endures over time. How do the conversations that happen within a studio and a home, with a partner whose opinion is a trusted source, affect one's practice? "My House is Your House" also celebrates the role that communities of like-minded individuals (partners of another sort) play in our creative endeavors. In opening up one's home, and creating connections with those around us, we build exchanges that ultimately make our world meaningful.

Statler Waldorf Gallery is an artist-run exhibition space located at 1098 W. Kensington Road, Los Angeles, CA, 90026, a private residence in Echo Park. We are open by appointment only. For more information, please email: info@statlerwaldorfgallery.com.